USEFUL PROPERTIES

YARWOOD'S Patent Washing Machine.

THIS highly useful Machine is found by experience to excel any hitherto in use. It will wash as many cloaths (by the assistance of one person) in an hour as can be washed in a whole day, without the possibility of injuring, fretting or tearing the most delicate article, and with less than half the quantity of soap. It occupies very little more space than the common wash-tub, and with the least care will not create any slop or wet—the construction is very simple and attended with little expence. A further description of its qualities is now deemed unnecessary, as it is presumed none will purchase without examining it.

We the subscribers de hereby certify that we have found, on trial, the above named Machine to answer fully the above description. Given under our hands this 5th day of May, A. D. 1809.

Extract of a letter from a very intelligent and respectable gentleman in Cadiz, to his friend in this city, dated

" CADIZ, March 31, 1809. " We are assured that Austria has declared war. If so, the affairs in this country will take a very different turn. The British, notwithstanding their reverses in the north of Spain, have returned to the charge, and thirty thousand men have arrived at Lisbon, and the van guard are marching on against the French, and may soon again expect to be up with them. An army of near 40,000 Frenchmen are in the adjoining province to this, and coming down it is supposed to attack us, but there is every reasonable hope to think that every thing will go right; for my part, I have not the least apprehensions. The Spaniards have suffered much-it was natural to suppose they would, and the cause of Spain has been a good deal injured by the alarm given in England, after the defeat of sir J. Moore's army. These people suffered much, but more from want of information and management than any thing else. But after all, if it is true, which we have every reason to suppose, that Austria has declared war, and she makes any resistance, nothing is to be apprehended from this side."

> Latest from Spain. SEVILLE, March 20.

The captain-general of the army and principality of Catalonia, D Teudoro Reding, sends the following account to the central supreme board of government of the kingdom, in a dispatch dated the 27th of last month.

In an attempt to carry into effect an excellent plan which had been adopted, in concert with his excellency Don Thomas de Veri, representative of the said central supreme board, and with the genera's and superior officers who were to concur in the execution, for the purpose of placing the troops in more advageous positions, the latter succeeded, after a number of skirmishes with the enemy, in stationing themselves from Martorell, through the Bruch, Capelledas, S. Magi and Coll de Sta. Christiana, as far as Tarragona, the head-quarters of the whole, under the orders of camp-marshal D. Juan Bautista de Castro, being in Igualada, thus covering the south of the principality, and to the northward, extending as far as the Valles, all the inhabitants of which were to be levied en masse. And, as the commander in chief reposes the utmost confidence in lieutenant-colonels D. Ramon de Milans, and D. Juan Claros, he resolved to entrust them with the execution of a part of the plan, which they readily undertook; and he further appointed to act with them, D. Francisco Milans, va se name has been so repeatedly mentioned during this war.

The more to expedite the operation, he ordered the former to repair, by the shortest road, to certain points previously agreed upon, and the latter to do the same, placing under their command three regiments of miquelets, and investing them with the requisite powers. It was at the same time determined, that their troops should make a general attack upon the enemy's: and there only remained to appoint a day for them all to act in concert, when general St. Cyr, who had been concentering his own, assailed on the 16th February, in great force, several points on the left, compelling our people successively to fall back as far as Igualada which general Castro abandoned in good order, retreating with the artillery by the Cervesa road.

And as this movement, while it disconcerted the plan of the commander in chief, excited his apprehensions respecting its consequences, he immediately determined to collect all the troops, or at least the best part of them, and to march them to Tarragona. For this purpose, unwilling to trust any one else, he set out himself from the last mentioned town, on Monday the 20th, with only 300 horse, a Swiss battalion and 6 pieces of flying artillery; which determination was approved of by all those who were consulted. With this small force he proceeded to the village del Pla, the enemy being in sight on his right, and at that time heights of Valls. Their artillery was siemployed in plundering and burning the towns of Villarodonaand la Pobla.

On the 23d he began his march from Sta. Colomo towards Montblanch, with a view to flank the left of Valls, which was occupied by the enemy, and reached Montblanch on the same day, having previously sent to the Coll de Lilla a detachment of light troops, and of armed peasantry from the neighborhood, under the orders of an officer in whom he confided.

The appearance in his rear of a few of the enem's men who immediately withdrew, turning, by the Coll de Cabra, towards the Pla and Valls, convinced gen. Reding that their object was merely to reconnoitre the strength and description of his troops; and accordingly, on the 24th, he held a meeting of the officers most distinguished by their rank and abilities, in which it was resolved, by a majority of votes, to set the army in motion without losing one moment: and that it should, that very night, pass the Coll de la Riba, or de las Morlas, and draw as near Tarragona as possible, without courting an engagement, but, on the other hand, without declining it, if a favorable opportunity should offer.

And indeed, the army immediately began its march which the narrowness of the passes and the bad roads retarded beyond what was expected; in such a manner that, at five in the morning, the advanced guard, commanded by general Castro, and one half of the centre had already passed Vais, leaving the enemy's fires on their right; but the other half of the centre, and the rear under camp-marshal D. Josef Joaquin Marti, still remained behind. All had hitherto passed and continued to march in the best order and the most profound silence, nor had any advanced party of the enemy's made its appearance; but scarcely had the general crossed a small bridge with his suite, when a discharge of musketry was made close upon him, which occasioned a little confusion, and wounded several individuals.

He immediately began to collect such troops as were following him, ordering, at the same time, those which went before, to stop and retrace their steps, for fear that | Captain Robert M. Steel, who came pasthe enemy should cut off the half of the cen- senger in her, arrived in town on Saturday tral column and the whole of the rear with the convoy of waggons, ammunition, and editor of the Mercantile Advertiser, with part of the artillery. Our artillery re-opened immediately, and same time. And yet valor alone could save up; and they all appeared ready to fight to the last, which they actually did. Some corps arrived at Tarragona in pretty good order; others in small parties; and most of the men, dispersed; and general Reding reached that town on the night of the 25th.

This is one of those actions in which valor had to yield to numbers: ours scarcely amounted to 10,000. And yet they maintained their ground, and stood the most tremendous fire for eleven hours together, without betraying the least fear or want of resolution; owing to which circumstance the loss has been very considerable on both sides. General Reding adds, that he cannot state the amount of ours, with any degree of certainty, until he have received the detailed returns which he promises to forward, with a list of the individuals who most particularly distinguished themselves.

In this report, which the general must have supposed would be made public, not a word is said of his having being wounded; but his majesty knows it from another official paper in which it is mentioned, and from its being stated in a letter of D. Thomas de Veris, in which a due tribute of praise is paid to the skill, gallantry and sang froid of D. Teodoro Reding. And accordingly his majesty has resolved, that this act of generosity should be made public, which considerably hightens the well known merit of his eminent and most valuable qualities; and he has, at the same time, the satisfaction of knowing, that the general is recovering, and that no apprehensions are entertained of any serious consequence.

London, March 27. Another important event is to be added pounders, which our troops stood with the to the many which have occurred of late years; a Revolution has broken out in Sweless conspicuous in their charge on the right den, and the gallant monarch has been deand left. Reding, seeing his light parties posed. His uncle has seized the reins of government, and in a proclamation addresstages which they had obtained. It is not ed to the people, declares his nephew incapable of conducting the affairs of the naregiments pushed on, in emulation of each tion. The details of this revolution we have not yet received. It was probably con and even to fly as far as the foot of the certed by the duke of Sudermania and some of the nobles at Stockholm, with the commanders of the troops on the frontiers of Norway. The revolutionary symptoms developed themselves first among the troops. The want of clothing and provisions had created great discontent, which was fomented by the commander in chief, who brok up from his position, and began his marc for Stockholm to demand a diet of the state On their march they published a proclam tion in which they stated that their view were merely these; that the states of the realm and the legislatures shall be at libert to assemble and deliberate without control The proclamation then draws a picture the wretched state of Sweden; and in speal ing of Great Britain and France, savs, the the former, the ally of Sweden, shall learn appreciate and value a nation which know how to break its fetters, and that the latte shall be taught to respect a people anxiou to rival her military powers. The proclams tion contains a solemn declaration, that he a single inch more of Swedish territory sha be given up to the enemy. The duke Sudermania, not waiting for the meeting of the states, deposed the king by his own au thority, and assumed the government. H majesty was put under arrest as he was a bout to set out for his country residence When the guard surrounded him he dres his sword, but he was soon overpowered and when the last advices left Stockholm he was a close prisoner.

That this revolution has been of French contrivance we are not able to pronounce tho' many will be inclined to suspect that i is. Since the revolution of 1772, brought a bout by the deposed monarch's father, considerable degree of discontent has exist ed among the nobles, whose authority was considerably abridged. The revolution to destroyed the influence which the Russian and French parties had over the Council of Sweden an influence so injurious to the real interests and dignity of the country. Great eccentricities of character his Swe dis's majesty certainly had; he was violen he was impatient, and acted too much, per haps, from the impulse of his passions; but it were indeed an act of injustice to imput to him, the miseries of Sweden, or the los of her territories. Had he chosen perhaps to bend the knee to Bonaparte; to have ac knowledged himself his vassal; to have crawled in his train with the servile her of Rhenish princes; had he linked himse in the same fetters with the kings of Wir temberg and Bavaria, he might have been permitted to have kept Pomerania, on th condition, however, of carrying on no trad with G. Britain. That he did not so debas himself will never be imputed to him as fault by any Swede who is a friend to the independence and freedom of his country That the war, and the severity of the sea son, procuced extreme misery is most true but they were not occasioned by the King He exercised the right which God and na ture give all sovereigns, of defending their territories against any enemy who may at tack them. He has failed however in the struggle, and the fall of another lawful sovereign will add another triumph to the many atchieved by Bonaparte over the principle of legitimacy, freedom and justice.

The French have retired from the Tagus after destroying the bridge of Arccibispo and the Spaniards are preparing to follow them. Some advantages have lately been gained over the French in Spain.

Dutch papers have been received to the 22d instant, and though they do not announce the commencement of hostilities they afford additional proofs that war is in evitable. The first column of Oudinot army, 30,000 strong, is now at Augsburg The second column filed off through Ul on the 1st, and proceeded in the same direction. The number of French in Germany including the Rhenish contingents, is estimated at 180,000 men. The Austrian troops are encamped at Egra, in the Bohemia, Lintz, in Upper Austria, and on the side of Italy. Considerable apprehensions are entertained in Saxony on account of the contiguity of the Austrian army, and the treasure and archieves have been sent of in great haste from Dresden. From Russia we have not sufficient information to as sert that she will take part with Austria; bu we have a strong belief that she will. The chief ejects of the revolution being said to be the esteration of peace, couriers were immediusent to the courts of London, Paris, Petersburg, and Copenhagen, with a new to accellerate the event.

As the authors of the revolution are ready weede Findland to Russia, peace it is supwed may easily be concluded. But ht us ot adopt that opinion too hastily. The emfor Alexander may see in this summary rocceeding against his brother in law, someing to a arm him. He may know or suswellt to be the work of France, and she olds it up as a kind of warning or menace him if he should throw off her influence .-Te may there se determine to adopt a viprous measure and to restore his brother in no to his throne by force of arms.

That peuce may early be made by the aufors of the revolution with France we can nutily believe - The deposition of their someign will be their immediate passport to pegrace and suvor of Bonaparte.

The French, as appears by the Paris paers to the 10th, did not make their formal mry into Saragossa till the 5th instant. tho' surrender is said to have taken place on he 21st of last month. The account of Palex's death is contradicted, Long may he apreserved to his country, of which he is so night an ornament.

It is announced in the latest letters from adiz which are of the 10th instant, that tranwility has been restored in that city; and at the several persons confined in the Cawhin convent, on a charge of treason, are did not so debate bject an interesting proclamation has been ublished by the Supreme Junta to the peoe of Cadiz. It asserts the in nocence of the larquis de Villal; and in order to prove it ore fully, states that the commissioners who to examine his conduct are not to be chonout of their own body, but out of persons different to his person, and partial only to f defending the scause of their country. His papers are my who may a sid to have discovered no symptoms of treahowever in the having been subjected to the inspection General Jones, the person in whom more an others the people place the greatest conlence, At the commencement of the dismances, General Mackenzie was invited to M his troops, in order to aid the popular ise; an interference which he very prorly declined.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

WEDNESDAY, May 24.

[Taken for the Alexandria Gazette.]

Petition from the inhabitants of Newort, praying that the light house at the of their harbor, which was blown and is an impediment to the navigaof said harbor, be erected again, was inted, and ordered to be referred to the mittee of commerce and manufactures. so, one from sundry merchants of Phithia, praying to be exonerated from penalties incurred under the embarwhich was referred to the commitcommerce and manufactures. It apthis was the case of a licensed vessel, hich bonds were given that she would arry any goods, wares or merchandize, operty of a foreign subject; however on freight sugar at Havana, bound Philadelphia, under the impression select committee, being under consideration,

It is supposed by some that he is the were the property of American citizens; when they actually belonged to a foreign subject; thus were the bonds entered into, forfeited to the U.S. but on an application to the secretary of the treasury, the bonds were cancelled, and this was an application to Congress for the freight of such sugars as the secretary conceived was forfeited and on which point he could not recede.

Mr. Jackson moved to amend the jour-solution in Sweden. Mr. Canning replied Mr. Jackson moved to amend the jour-solution in Sweden. Mr. Canning replied Mr. Jackson moved to amend the jour-solution in Sweden. Mr. Canning replied Mr. Jackson moved to amend the joursed for printing 5000 copies of the Presidents message and documents. Carried.

> A memorial was presented from Charles Turner, of Mass. contesting the right of Wm. Mills to a seat in the house; also one from the inhabitants of Plymouth district. relative to the same subject and both referred to the committee of elections.

> Mr. Randolph. I rise for the purpose of making two motions-the nature of which I will explain. The President in his message has omitted to give an opinion upon some of our foreign relations; I allude to that part of it speaking of the standing army, and 100,000 militia. I believe the penple of the United States never will submit to see a standing army equipped, armed and provided with resources, and see the militia the proper defence of the nation, deprived of their arms, left bare and unprotected. I believe it would be the most popular act of the present administration, to disband the present standing army. I admit that some troops may be necessary, to prevent collisions with our frontier neighbors &aboriginals; but to have a respectable army in the United States, we must begin anew, as our planters in a new settlement would say, begin from the very stump; for I believe the old establishment is rotten to the core, that it is not a safe depositary of the arms of the nation. I do not mean to condemn any man, I only mean to state facts, only to shew what A. and B. said, God forbid I shoud condemn any man upon mere assertion, much less unheard. It will be seen I have two objects, first to disband part of the present standing army, which motion I should have brought ferward, were I sure that every individual from the highest to the lowest were as pure from corruption as the Alpine snows, and second to give to the administration an opportunity of sifting from the bulk those canker worms which might eat and are eating through the heart of our existence. The second motion is intended to institute an enquiry, which shall sweep with the besom of public scrutiny, the impurities of our systems. With these views I submit the following resolutions:

> Resolved, That the additional military force created by an act of the last Congress be disbanded, and that the surplus of the appropriations for its support, together with the surplus for the equipment of the gunboats, be applied to the arming the whole body of the militia of the U. States.

Resolved, That a committee be appointed to enquire whether all monies drawn from the treasury have been applied to the legitimate or proper objects; and to enquire what arrangements could be made to promote economy in the distribution of public monies, to enforce adherence to legislative restrictions, and secure the accountability of persons entrusted with public monies.

Mr. Jackson wished to know whether 2 motion to go into committee of the whole on the state of the union would not supercede the gentleman's propositions which are now about to be acted on?

Mr. Randolph meant to refer to that committee, and moved accordingly, but so varied it that each resolution be referred to a select committee, to report to the house by bill or otherwise.

Mr. Eppes said in relation to the first motion, that if there was to be a deduction, it should be the old rather than the new levies, from which such deduction should be made in concordance to the gentleman from Va. who has said that the army from its root was rotten. On the second resolution; that it was the peculiar province of the committee of ways and means, to take every step which the gentleman's resolution goes to enforce. However if the gentleman from Va. could identify a charge in a particular department, or against an individual, he would not object to the commitment of the resolution so modified.

Mr. Macon was in favor of a commitment to the committee of the whole on the state of the union; urged the propriety of an enquiry into the state of the treasury, and cited the enquiry made by this house at the commencement of Jefferson's administration; and asked, should we do to others what we would not do to ourselves. He thought no greater honor could be done an extinct administration than an enquiry into its executions which should eventuate in its credit and honor.

The reference of the first resolution to a

Mr. Lyon moved to divide the resolution into two sections, the second of which he should vote for, but would not consent to the first, because he had no idea that our army should lay down their arms and be disbanded, when every state in the union is vulnerable to rabble, and the country which I represent open to the inroads of savages; and it would be impolitic in the present convulsed state of the world. G. Britain has but told us that she would recede, and so forth, but this is not the assurance of reality, which I wish to see, before I can conset to disband our army.

Mr. Jackson moved that the resolution be referred to a committee of the whole on the state of the union, divided into two sec-

Mr. Randolph opposed such a reference. In the course of his opposition he remarked (echoing an expression of Mr. Macon's) the country indeed never will see such an administration as the last; the first 4 years of it had my most hearty concurrence; but the last had my hearty disapprobation; it was the lean kine eating up the fat kine; for the last four years with the embargo in their train, devoured the rich harvest of the preceding 4, and had not some Joshph stepped in it is impossible to sap what would have been the extent of dilapidation; no administration ever went from office leaving the country in so deplorable a state as the last. His object was for ferreting out the rats from the public departments; and to correct what he conceived errors in our military system; for while we were appropriating millions for standing armies, millions for navies, millions for gun-boats, we appropriated but 200,000 dollars for arming the militta of the country, not 20 cents a man for rendering it invulnerable: in his elective capacity he would never, so help him God, vote for any man who would not arm the militia; then we would hear no more of invasions from Canada, no more of Burr and his conspiracy, and the uses that have been made of them, like the Pope and the Pretender, to scare us into compliance, no more suspensions of habeas corpus act, no more enforcing embargo acts.

Speaking of the President he observed, that he would do him the justice to say, as he was disposed to do every person justice, but more particularly him, that he entered on his office the friend of economy, the friend of reform, and that in his practice he was as economical as a man would be who had command of a fleet of gun boats, who had command of a standing army, and who had the resources of the country cut off by an embargo.

The first member was referred to the committee of the whole on the state of the

The second resolution under considera-

Mr. Randolph concurred in the gentlemans modification, and the resolution was referred to the committee of the whole house on the state of the union, unanimously.

Doctor I. J. Comyn,

RESPECTFULLY acquaints the LADEIS he intends to practice in this place for a few days, in all the various branches of his prolession. No genteel person of either sex, can give or receive pleasure or comfort, by teeth coated with tart or decayed gums, or fæted breath, His method of cleaning th teeth will be found both easy and efficacious, as hundreds can attest in Baltimore and elsewhere. Without giving pain, or hurting the enamel, he removes the tartar, &c. when the teeth will assume a beautiful appearance the gums adhering to the teeth; but if the state of the gums require it, doctor C. will give to the person an antiscorbutic lotion of chemical preparation, which gained the applause of hundreds both in Europe and America. It is pleasant, innocent, and effectual, in smoothing and whitening the teeth and curing the gums, rendering them red and firm, preventing the decay of the teeth and sweetening the breath. Doct. C. fits artificial teeth from one to an entire set, with such nicety, as to answer the useful purposes of nature, and of so natural an appearance that it is impossible to distinguish them from real ones. Dr. C. flatters himself from his being regularly bred to the practice of physick, as well as to the Dentist Business, and his long experience on the continent of Europe (France and Spain) to give to all those who favour him with their commands, every possible satisfaction.

JUST RECEIVED.

FOR SALE ONLY BY James Kennedy, fen. BOOKSELLER, KING-STREET, The following highly valuable MEDICINE Price 3 dollars per bottle.

> DR. JEBB'S NATURE'S KESTORATIVE, A BALSAMIC CORDIAL.

THIS cordial, so justly celebrated throughout Great Britain and the continent of Europe, for its superior efficacy in the cure of all disorders excited by nervous irritability, as well as in complaints of complete debility, whether arising from irregularities of living, long continued residence in warm climates, intemperate pursuits of excessive pleasures, or that destructive habit of inconsiderate youth which brings on so prematurely the infirmites of old age.

In removing pulmonary affections, asthmas, and all disorders of the lungs, it is the most powerful remedy ever yet found, and the relief it has afforded even in the last stage of consumptions, is without a parallel; with regard to its efficacy in this baneful, and unfortunately the prevailing disorder in this country (con sumption) its superiority is such as to have copplanted every other medicine.

Those who in advanced life feel the conse quences of youthful excess, will find themselves restored to health and strength, and all hose melancholy symptoms removed, which are the general effects of such causes.

In short, animated by the uniform success this invaluable cordial has experienced in Europe, the thousands it has renovated, when bending under the pressure of nervous, consumptive or hypochondriacal disorders (many attested proofs of which from eminently distinguished persons in this quarter of the globe, are now in the possession of the proprietor here, some few of which are herein published) have determined the introduction of it into this continent, where its efficacies must soon become so prized as to make it considered a beneficent remedy not to be dispensed with bly those who are anxious to preserve or ac quire their health. The chief ingredient of this cordial is a pant whose rare and precious salutary virtues were well known to the Arabians during the 8th and 9th centuries, when that people shone conspicuous over all the nations of the worlg for their learning and skill in eradicatind baneful diseases incident to the human frame, renovating infirmity to vigor, and restoring the sickly to sound and rosy health, and which as known at this time by their descendants, and used and experienced as the most sovereign remedy for decayed constitutions, and every species of nervous disorders. This celebrated restorative plant has also been highly estimated for ages past, amongst the most enlightened nations of Greece, and considered by those wise inhabitants as one of the first of their blessings. This cordial is also rich and fine in flavor most grateful to the palate, and the most enlivening to the spirits of any yet offered to the public. Dr. Tiffot's celebrated Gout and Rheumatic Drops.

(Price, Two Dollars per bottle.)

NOTHING is of more importance than the preservation of health-this common laced remark however is TOO OFTEN FORGOTTEN, whilst we are active and strong-and pre vention of pain, which is superior to its cure, is not sufficiently attended to by any description of persons. Among those disorders which require the most early and unremitting efforts to eradicate and overcome, none have a strong er claim upon our notice than the Gout, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Weakness of the Joints, Sprains, Gleets, the Stone and Gravel, the Cramp and every species of Rheumatic Pains from whatever cause they may have originated-and hence every relief which can be administered is too valuable to be forgotten .--Those persons whose avocations peculiarly expose them to colds, &c. cannot be too anxious always to possess immediate aid. Sea-faring persons, travellers, &c. ought constantly to carry with them that medicine which will counteract the unpleasans effects of their perilous duties, and especially those pains to which their situation must expose them. To those who reside in or visit the West-Indies, and ther warm climates, they will be found upon trial to convey the most lasting service an will gradually destroy all tendency to disease in the human frame, and preserve health and vigor. Although a great variety of prescriptions have been published to cure the disorders enumerated above, none has yet equalled the GOUT AND RHEUMATIC DROPS of DR. TISSOT, which are celebrated throughout the European continent, and whose un bounded benefits are fully authenticated by certificates already published of gentlemen so well known in America, being of the first con sequence in the state of Maryland: Genera Charles Ridgely, of Hampton; John Gibson, Esq. one of the directors of the Farmers' Bank of Maryland; John Macubbin, Esq. Mrs. Ma cubbin, his wife; and Mrs. Ryan, of Calton-Ample certificates and affidavits of the beneficial effects of these medicines may be seen
